WARMBOARD WINS TWICE AT THE 2009 GREEN LOG HOME AWARDS™

(APTOS, CA) June 2009 – Warmboard is honored to win the Best HVAC System and People's Choice awards at the 2009 GREEN LOG Home Awards.

Warmboard won the Best HVAC System with Matt Franklin, AIA; Lead designer, Mountain Architects saying: "This product is great. It saves energy consumption, is extremely comfortable, and invisible from a visual standpoint, in the home." Charles Bevier, Owner, Bevier Creative; Former Editor, Building Systems Magazine said: "I have seen this product and have felt its performance after installation. I must say I am a big fan."

Winners were chosen by a distinguished panel and were judged on their innovation, effect on the environment, seamless integration, and enhancement to the home. The People's Choice award was determined by the voting public.

Tony Gasparich, President and COO of Warmboard Inc. said, "It is a privilege to be chosen for these awards again by both the public and the judging panel. There is tremendous potential to educate homeowners and trades people about the sustainable products and building practices that are available today."

About Warmboard Radiant Subfloor:

Warmboard is a patented technology invented by Terry Alsberg in the early 90s, and has redefined radiant flooring with its design simplicity. Warmboard is a whole home floor heating solution that lowers the cost of heating a home while making occupants more comfortable than other radiant floor systems. The product is currently marketed to architects, contractors and homeowners. Warmboard is available throughout North America, and has shipped its product into Canada, Europe, the United Kingdom, Japan and Antarctica. About the GREEN LOG Home Awards™:

The GREEN LOG Home Awards were created by PrecisionCraft Log Homes and the award-winning architectural firm of Mountain Architects to help find green building solutions for our clients and other home builders. We realized that locating innovative and useful green building solutions could be difficult, and looked for a creative way to discover these products and present them to the public. Thus the GREEN LOG Home Awards were born.
